No memory that I have as I only saw "Butch" every 10 years or so. Of course I have known him for many years as our farms were on the same road. I liked him a lot and always have. Even though I was not a cowboy, he always treated me well. Always a big smile and hug or big handshake. Candidly I always felt a little sorry for him. Finding a niche in life life is not easy when you are one of a kind. God Bless you Butch and keep riding.

One day Buddy Cockrell and I went by Riley's to look at some colts. I knocked on his back door. When he came to the door, he opened it up and said come on in, I have to get my boots on. While standing there I could see freshly braided halters and lead ropes he had been working on. I also saw some buckets with different colors of dye in them. As I looked at the red bucket I jokingly said, "Is this bucket red dye or human blood?" Riley said "It's human blood from the last guys that came here to Jew me on a horse! We all died laughing.

Riley LOVED his horses. He could - and would - talk for hours about pedigrees and who all did what. He was a walking encyclopedia concerning Hancock horses, his personal favorites.

Riley was a heck of a man. I rode colts for him nearly 40 years ago when we lived in Dalhart. He gave me a nickname that I don't think I'll put on here. Lots of stories and good memories of that big, big man!
