Thinking he would be drafted into the Army soon, they wanted, and made the decision, to marry before he went overseas. Delmer and his bride moved to Watsonville, California where he received his induction into the army for two years and served in Korea for a one year tour of duty, being on the front line when the Armistice was signed in 1953.

He served in the 7th Division 31st Infantry Regiment and attained the rank of Sergeant. Delmer finished his service time at Fort Carson in Colorado Springs, CO, where he received his honorable discharge in October 1954. They lived there four months following his discharge, then he served in the Army Reserve for 6 years.

The Barefoot's returned to Texas after being discharged, where he found employment with Cabot at the Carbon Black plant for ten and one half years in Pampa, Texas, and a very short time east of Shamrock. He always dreamed of having a farm of his own, and in 1965 he and Mildred bought a farm with a home from George W. and Hazel Davis northeast of Shamrock, where they raised a family- Kerry Lynn, Stanley Dean and Scott Eugene.
